

CHICAGO'S DEWEY PARADE

Danger of Its Being Marred by Trouble With Labor Unions.

The Building Trades Council Refuses to Permit Musicians to Participate in the Festival. The Erection of a Grand Stand by Non-Union Men the Cause of the Difficulty.

CHICAGO, April 21.—The decision of the Dewey Committee to accept the grandstand to be built by the contractors employing non-union men caused the Building Trades Council last night to decide to do all in its power to injure the parade. The council has authority over the Musicians' Union and will refuse to allow any union band to go in the parade. As every band of consequence in the city is in the union, the committee is now confronted with the likelihood of a parade without music. The Musicians' Union, officials, says it will stand by the Building Trades Council in the matter.

The failure of the mayor to accomplish anything as arbitrator in the labor troubles is recognized today as complete. Labor leaders and contractors say now that the mayor, after two attempts to make political capital out of the strike situation, has discovered he had best drop the matter absolutely. They say when politics is out of the picture, chances for a settlement will be much greater.

Edward Carroll, president of the Building Trades Council, returned from the East last night, where he has been in the interest of the Chicago workers who are suffering from a lockout. Mr. Carroll met with such success upon his trip, he says, that he will immediately start out again, going to other cities which he did not visit.

Mr. Carroll said he had secured $25,000 for the aid of the Chicago unions in their fight.

THE BRIDGE-JUMPER BETTER.

Marie Dinse Nearly Able to Leave the Hospital.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Marie Dinse, of 312 West Twenty-third Street, who jumped from the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday afternoon and who was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, is rapidly recovering. Dr. Bailey, the house physician, says that the woman will be able to leave the hospital tomorrow morning.

When the woman awoke this morning she asked if she were under arrest. When a policeman told her that she was and that she would be obliged to go to court when she left the hospital, she said: "If that is so I wish they had left me in the water." She also said she felt very sick. The woman received a large bunch of roses this morning.

A VICTIM OF RABIES.

A Maryland Farmer Suffering From the Bite of a Horse.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 21.—John Williams, a farmer, aged forty-four years, is chained to the floor at his home at Corriagansville, three miles north of Cumberland, at the interval of every seven hours, when he becomes fractious and vicious, pawing, biting, and kicking as does a wild horse. Williams is a victim of hydrophobia, and he made the request himself in a lucid interval that he be chained so that he could not injure his family during moments of raving. The attacks usually last an hour and a half, after which he is rational. He pleads with different people to shoot him in the head and end his terrible life.

A horse belonging to Williams, which was bitten by a dog three weeks ago, went mad. The animal tore at his own skin in shreds. Williams led it to a field to kill it, when it pinched him on the arm with its teeth. He paid no attention to the injury, which resulted in rabies.

A BATTLE WITH CROWS.

A Farmer Attacked by a Flock of the Enraged Birds.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 21.—Lemuel Hines, of Oshkosh township, four miles west of here, while at work in his field, was attacked by a large flock of crows and frightfully injured.

Hines was distributing a wagon load of fertilizer over the field, and before he had warning a flock of apparently 1,000 or more crows flew into the field from the direction of Kalamazoo. His attempts to drive them away with a pitchfork were futile, and they attacked him viciously. He killed quite a number, but the remainder of the flock pecked his face and neck in a terrible manner. His cries attracted his wife, who came to his rescue with a shotgun, with which she killed a score or more.

The Death of Mrs. Stacey B. Lewis.

Mrs. Stacey B. Lewis, of 1297 L Street, died at Waterville, Me., Tuesday, April 17, and was buried there on the 19th. Mrs. Lewis was formerly of Galveston, Texas, but resided in Washington for over twenty years. She was eighty years of age. Mr. Frank J. Lewis, her son, and his family have been living at Waterville during the winter.

For a New Revenue Cutter.

The House Committee on Commerce to which was referred the bill to provide for the construction of a revenue cutter for use at Philadelphia has recommended that the bill pass without amendment. Secretary Gage in his report on this bill said: "The vessel now performing service at Philadelphia (the cutter Washington) is a very old wooden one, having been acquired from the Navy in 1885, in which it did service in the cutter Washington. The cost of the Washington was $7,000, and during the thirty-five years she has been in the Revenue Cutter Service there have been expended upon the vessel in repairs about $25,000."

GRAND LARCENY CHARGED.

A Railroad Brakeman Said to Have Committed a Serious Offense.

David R. Twyman, 28 years old, a brakeman in the employ of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, was arrested by detectives Muller and Baur yesterday evening charged with grand larceny. The only complaint at present is Miss Sarah Mellish, of Clinton, Ohio, though others will probably appear as soon as property in the possession of the police can be identified. It is probable that Twyman will be arraigned in the Police Court Monday morning. He is said to have admitted his guilt and to have furnished information which led to the recovery of alleged stolen property valued at several hundred dollars.

For weeks past it is said frequent complaints have been made to the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad officials that baggage of various descriptions was mysteriously disappearing. The complaint led to an investigation with the result that the aid of the local police was solicited. Detectives Muller and Baur were detailed on the case and they, after an investigation, secured a search warrant and examined the contents of the home of Twyman in Missouri Avenue.

The search revealed the trunk of Miss Mellish, which had been reported missing and the arrest of Twyman followed. The brakeman then admitted stealing the trunk, it is said, and added that he had also stolen four dress suit cases. He is said to have explained that he stole because he was "hard up." Two of the dress suit cases have been recovered.

According to Twyman, the scheme operated by him was to get possession of trunk checks from various small stations and use them on baggage which he intended to steal. For instance he would substitute a check showing Washington as the destination of baggage in place of a check which indicated that the baggage was to go to Philadelphia. The baggage having been checked through Cincinnati. The result was that baggage which should have been released at Philadelphia would be put off the train in Washington. Twyman, it is said, would then send a duplicate check to the railroad station and obtain the baggage on which he had altered the check.

DOCTOR WANTS A FIRE BADGE.

The Application Discouraged by the Superintendent of Police.

Dr. Clarence Weaver recently submitted a request to the District authorities for a fire badge, which would enable him to pass within the lines at fires to render emergency service. The request was backed up by the claim that prompt medical attendance in cases where people were burned, strangled with smoke, or otherwise injured would result in saving many lives.

The request was referred to the Superintendent of Police who reported back to the Commissioners that it was quite important times that a professional man be at hand to render services of the kind described by Dr. Weaver. If granted, however, in one case Major Sylvester thought it would lead to many similar applications from other physicians, and on that ground he was opposed to granting the request.

It is understood that the Commissioners will inform the applicant that compliance with his request would set a bad precedent.

THE COMMISSIONERS' REPLY.

A Letter to W. C. Dodge Relative to Naphtha Street Lighting.

The Commissioners have sent a reply to W. C. Dodge, whose communication on naphtha lighting was recently published in The Times, that in their opinion the best interests of the district are subserved by the contractor buying and caring for the burners and tubing used in the naphtha lanterns.

A day has also been arranged for a hearing, at which time Mr. Dodge and others will be given an opportunity to state their position before the Board of Commissioners.

FOUND A BIG PEARL.

An Army Officer Discovers One in an Oyster Pattice.

NEW YORK, April 21.—It became known yesterday that Lieut. Herbert Whipple, of the Seventh United States Cavalry, recently found a valuable pearl in an oyster pattice while dining with friends in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The pearl was the size of a hazel nut, and nearly round. Had it not been damaged in the cooking process it would be worth at least $20,000.

The dinner was given in honor of Lieutenant Whipple a few days before his departure to join his regiment in Cuba. As he was eating an oyster pattice his teeth struck something hard. As it was too round to be a piece of oyster shell he made an examination, and found it to be a beautiful pearl. The process of cooking had changed its appearance from a pure white to a dull, turquoise blue. Lieutenant Whipple has the gem put on a stickpin for his wife, who lives in Louisville, Ky.

"ZAZA" STILL RUNNING.

Manager Belasco Declares There Is No Danger of Suppression.

LONDON, April 21.—A correspondent to-day interviewed Mr. Belasco in regard to the row over the play of "Zaza." Mr. Belasco said:

"Mr. Redford, the examiner of plays, attended the production of the play and expressed his complete satisfaction. He did not question the moral aspect of the production. There is no possibility of the suppression of the play, and there will be no alteration in the play from the New York version." Mr. Redford does not complain because the manuscript of the play was not furnished to Lord Chamberlain.

The play arouses enthusiasm nightly, and the sale of seats is heavy.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

KEEPS NERVE AND AMBITION STRONG

REV. FRED PFEIFFER, SEDALIA, MO., Writes:

"My nervous system was entirely broken down by overwork. I could not eat nor sleep. For four months I was in the hospital, but without any decided benefit. At last, I purchased a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and soon felt its wonderful curative effects. Four bottles of the Compound restored me to health and strength; I am now ambitious to work, have a good appetite, and sleep well."

There is no strength and ambition to work when the nerves and body are weak or diseased. Paine's Celery Compound sustains the strength of the nerves and of the stomach, liver and kidneys.

THE INCIDENT CLOSED.

Seizure of American Goods in Delagoa Bay Settled.

The incident growing out of the confiscation of certain axes, ax handles, and lubricating oil, shipped by an American firm to Delagoa Bay, and confiscated by the British authorities in South Africa on the ground that they were intended for military use of the Boers, has been closed through notification of the British government by the firm which made the shipments that it had been paid for the goods by the consignees at the time of departure from the United States, and that it therefore had no claim to make.

GOVERNOR TANNER'S ILLNESS.

An Operation Will Be Necessary for His Relief.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 21.—Announcement was made yesterday, after consultation at the executive mansion, that Governor Tanner is suffering from gall stones, and that an operation will become necessary to obtain permanent relief. The consultation was conducted by Dr. Nicholas Senn, Chicago, and the attending physicians, Drs. L. C. Taylor and J. N. Dixon, all of whom concurred in the following statement concerning the Governor's condition:

"We positively exclude the idea of tuberculosis or of cancer from the diagnosis. We believe that the paroxysms of pain are due to the presence of gall stones and its consequences. We believe that the condition is such that it will probably require a surgical interference some time in the near future. The operation, although a delicate one, is usually successful."

HAVOC WROUGHT BY FLOODS.

Pearl River Rising, and Business at a Standstill.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—Pearl River, the dividing line between Louisiana and Mississippi, has reached its timber mark since 1874. Yesterday the timber booms commenced breaking up, and thousands of dollars' worth of timber has been floated out to sea. All business on the river is at a standstill. The sawmills have had to discontinue operations. All the steamboats are lying up their wharves with steam up in case of emergencies. Traffic of all kinds is suspended, and the water is still rising. Hundreds of head of cattle and hogs were drowned before they could be got out to high land. The deer and other game are swimming across the river at every available point. All farms and gardens will have to be replanted.

RATS ABOARD OCEAN SHIPS.

Methods of Catching the Pests When Voyages End.

(From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

Chatting with some friends last night, the captain of a big freight steamer reported a recently told case, told some queer stories about rats. "I have the ship cleaned out by professional rat catchers whenever we touch at Liverpool," he said, "and between times we try to keep them down by trapping, but it's hard work. We don't dare to use poison. If we did, the hold would soon be full of dead rats, and the stench would breed a fever. Our traps are of the wire cage pattern, and considerable craft has to be used in setting them, for a ship rat is a very cunning animal. He will steal along over the United States and land his brothers walk into that wire cage and get caught. If we simply baited the traps in the ordinary way and left them about in the hold, we wouldn't catch a dozen in a year. Our plan is this: On the first night we open the trap doors and tie them in that position with bits of string, so they can't possibly spring shut. Then we put traps of old cheese inside. That's to reassure the rats that the strange contrivances are perfectly harmless, and that they may enter with a certainty of getting out again. Next night we renew the bait and take off the strings, and, as a general thing, we catch all that the cages will hold. I have seen some so full that it seemed impossible to get another rat inside, that is pretty good evidence, as I take it, that they can't communicate with each other and give the alarm. There is nothing new about the trick I describe; it is practised on all big ships when the rats get too bad."

"As long as the creatures have enough water to drink," continued the captain, "lighting a fresh cigar. 'They don't give the crew any particular trouble and keep out of sight down in the bowels of the ship. But thirst makes them desperate, and then they become an unmitigated nuisance, and will go boldly anywhere in search of a drink. I have known them to invade the fo'c'st'le in such numbers that they drove the sailors to the deck, and at other times I have seen several hundred rats scurrying over the water barrel. It would surprise most people unaccustomed to sea life to know that water is usually kept in the hold of cargo ships, especially for the rats. It's done to keep them below, and if for any reason the supply runs short there is sure to be trouble."

PHOTOGRAPHS OF GHOSTS.

Pictures of Spirits Made Years Ago in Washington.

(From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

"In looking over a lot of old paraphernalia the other day," said a local photographer, "I ran across here a dozen 'spirit' photographs, taken in Washington in 1868. It is pretty well forgotten now, but that sort of thing created a great furore around about the year I mention. The pictures showed the sitter with one or more ghostly faces hovering in the background, and sometimes the entire form of the apparition was discernible. Those I have were all made for one person—a lady who was then a social leader in New Orleans, and was widely noted for her intellectual gifts. She became interested in spiritualism, and went to Washington especially to have these photographs taken. They all depict her seated in an armchair and the 'spirits' appear in a sort of cloudy fog immediately behind her. The most striking of the set shows an old man standing behind her right shoulder. The figure is very misty, but can be made out with ease, and I said just now that when the creatures were thirsty they would go anywhere, and I mean it to the monkeys. They will climb the rigging like monkeys, and it is a common thing for them to clear up the topsails looking for the rainwater that accumulates in the light or fold of furled canvas. Last time I was in port I saw a green sailor get the scare of his life. He had gone aloft to shake out the topgallant, and, as he did so, four enormous rats sprang out and ran up one arm, across his shoulder, and down the other side. He was so startled that he let loose all holds, and would certainly have fallen to the deck if he hadn't providentially caught on the footline. Many of the fo'c'st'le hands make pets of rats during a long voyage, and it is astonishing how easily they can be tamed and made to perform tricks. When a professional cat comes aboard for a general raid there is always a frantic rounding up of these pets to get them out of harm's way until after the battle is over."
